The co-production ladder

What is co-production?

Co-production is working in partnership people with lived expertise to design and deliver services that affect them.

Why do we co-produce?

We co-produce our work, so that we learn from one another, and so that we can combine the power of Turn2us with the collective power of people with lived experience.

Our co-production framework:

We developed our co-production framework with our co-production partners

Levels of co-production

| Which type of involvement? | What is it? | How do we share decision making |

| CO-PRODUCTION Is done with co-production partners | A project with a shared vision and goal Everyone's input has the same value | Decision making is shared equally throughout |
| CO-DESIGN Is done with co-production partners | A project with a shared vision and goal. Implementation and delivery rests with Turn2us, but staff are guided by co-production partners | Decision making is shared equally during design but not conception or delivery |
| ENGAGEMENT Is done for co-production partners | While designing your project you bring in co-production partners regularly to get their input You choose whether co-production partners influences your decisions | Some decision making opportunities are shared, but the ultimate choice is made by staff |
